DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

1. The (OCO)n structural piece is ambiguous. Is the O bound to the Si on the left or the N on the right? For whichever choice is selected, applicants must show that one skilled in the art could have figured out that this choice, and not another, was surely intended. The traverse is unpersuasive. Applicants cite some law, which is agreed with. However, applicants appear to be unable to say what the claims mean, let alone explain why one of ordinary skill in the art would be able to figure it out. If applicants are unable to say what the claim means, then neither can the public. Thus, applicants say “Here, one of ordinary skill in the art would understand what is claimed, given the teachings of the Specification and the claim as written.” But what is the understanding: is it O-C(O)- or is this -(O)C-O-? And where are these “teachings of the specification” that applicants refer to?
2. The term “substantially free” is indefinite. What level of purity does this require? Terms of degree, such as “substantial” are indefinite when the specification lacks “explicit guidelines” to distinguish from things which are not so, Ex parte Oetiker, 23 USPQ2d 1651, 1655 (1990), and Seattle Box v. Industrial Crating, 221 USPQ 568, 574. The traverse is unpersuasive. Applicants point to page 7, lines 26-28. That is exactly the problem. Three very different answers appear there. There is no way of knowing which one applicants actually intend. Applicants can pick any one they want, but they either need to insert that choice into the claim, or remove the other two from the specification. The remarks again fail to indicate which standard applicants intend.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
